NEW LENOX BAND WINS IN DIST. MEET: WILL ENTER STATE CONTEST

The New Lenox grade school band, under the direction of W. H. Reed, gained new honors last Saturday when they received a Division I rating in the district grade school band contest held in the Downers Grove high school.

The band, a 34 piece group, received high praise from the three expert judges who rated them. One judge from the Northwestern university school of music rated them, Superior, a distinction given to few bands.

The New Lenox band was one of seven competing in the class D category. Class D bands are those from schools with enrollments from 250 to 500. Other bands in the group were from Fairmont, Chaney, Rockdale, Plainfield, Algonquin and Mt. Prospect.

All the judges rated the band as outstanding for stage appearance, discipline, excellence of direction and intonation. The percussion section was

The following letter was received recently by Mrs. George Bills, leader of the Mokena Senior Girl Scouts, in appreciation for the clothing which the local group had sent to Germany. The past week the same group sent two more additional boxes of clothing.

Detmold 11-12-48

My dear Lady:

The things sent by your group have been distributed and have been received with great joy. I want to thank you ever so much for your friendliness and want to ask you to transmit my thanks to your friends. It is a good thing to know that one thinks in America about the want here in Germany which had been caused by the unhappy past, and that one tries to help in your manner. On the other hand I can assure you that every German is especially happy in this manner to get a personal contact with the American friends, so that he can contribute to a mutual exchange of experiences, to the general understanding.

As far as I am concerned, I had the misfortune to lose my home and all my belongings because of the war. Besides that my husband was severely wounded in Russia (shot through arm, leg and lungs) so that he still has to suffer from it now. My little daughter Doris and I were buried during a bombing attack on my hometown Nordhausen and were saved only after several hours from the cellar by rescuers. My husband, who at that time was in a hospital at Detmold, I found only after half a year's search. We had to start housekeeping again from the beginning and what this means dear lady you can hardly imagine without knowing the circumstances here. Everything needed for living we had to buy new. Food was almost impossible to get and only in insufficient quantities, this naturally had bad consequences for my little daughter Doris who at that time 1945 was 3 years old. She was an easy target for every sickness and has not overcome that yet even today. With each little cold she has to go to bed. Only a month ago she had pleurisy.

In the last month, however, the food situation has improved somewhat, although it is still not sufficient to give a child everything it needs for a growing body. We only hope that the future will bring some further improvement in the food situation, so that even these damages can be repaired.

Considering these circumstances, dear lady, you can imagine the joy if one receives something nice from our American friend, be it a letter, or like in this case nice clothes.

I am enclosing in this letter a picture of my little Doris and myself so that you can get to know your German friends. I hope that you and your friends will like it.

I would be happy if I could hear from you again, maybe also your friends will be kind enough to answer me (please show this letter to them).

In closing I want to thank you and your friends again for the things sent to me and remain with my best greetings and wishes for your health.

Yours, Anneliese Julich

especially complimented for its performance.

By achieving this rating the band earned the right to participate in the state contest at Bloomington May 13 and 14.

On the same date Glen Ruthenbeck and Gordon Ekedahl, snare drummers, Robert Zusag, trombonist, Ronald Chesmore, clarinetist, Patricia Gigen, flutist and George Archibald, cornetist will compete in the solo contests, having won first place ratings in an earlier solo contest at Glen Ellyn.

Ruthenbeck and Ekedahl can gain additional honors as they also qualified for the state finals as a drum duo.

VETS ADVISED TO SHOW DISCHARGE TO DRAFT BOARDS

The Will County Selective Service local boards announced today that veterans between the ages of 18 to 26 inclusive are requested to furnish their local board with a certified copy of photostatic proof of their discharges, according to Mrs. Mary Meyers, chief clerk of the draft board.

This must be done before March 25 which will eliminate the necessity of veterans filling out another Selective Service questionnaire. During the past few days questionnaires have been mailed to veterans in the 26-year old group, but if they will furnish draft boards with copies of their discharges, the questionnaires may be returned uncompleted.

Mrs. Meyers stated that those between the ages of 18 to 26 who have not registered must do so immediately or action will be taken by the Selective Service boards. She said many youths have willfully neglected to register or have not made themselves acquainted with the draft laws. The office of the draft board is located in room 217 of the Joliet Building, 4 East Clinton st.

The chief clerk also advises that those registered must notify the draft board of any change of address or status.

Farm Life Program Has School Discussion

At the Farm Life program held last Wednesday evening in the Marley community church, a panel discussion took place on the subject: "What is the answer to our present educational question?"

On the panel were Louis Bottino, county superintendent of schools, Elmer Rowley, dean of the Joliet township high school junior college, Mrs. Elizabeth Cappel, principal of Mokena public school, Mrs. Joe Liberty, teacher of the Marley school, Fred Francis, farmer, Rev. Bingham, pastor of the Marley church and Max Kuster, Ag. instructor in the Joliet Twp. high school.

Some of the thoughts brought out in the discussion were the great need for better teachers, because so many teachers are not qualified today for this professional job, and that teachers should mingle outside the school room with the parents and students; teachers are scarce today because the high wages being paid in other fields are more inducive. The reason the unit system has failed in so many of the recent elections was because of finances; the rural children should have schools available in the rural area where they feel more at home; that it is too great a step for a rural student to go from the rural school into a city school.

A summary of the discussion was given that a 4-room school in the country for the first six grades, a junior high school for the seventh and eighth grades and after that a student would be more ready to enter a large city high school.

Dr. Fatheree Cites Vaccination Benefit

Thousands of persons, including children, become ill and some of them die needlessly each year of diseases which can be prevented by immunization, stated Dr. Leroy Lee Fatheree, Health Officer, Will county health department.

"Although smallpox, typhoid fever, and whooping cough can be prevented by vaccination or immunization, these diseases continue to occur."

"The value of immunization against these diseases has been demonstrated by the reductions in incidence that have been achieved through the years. But even a small number of cases of preventable diseases is too many."

"Every child should be inoculated against smallpox and diphtheria at six months of age. Your state health department recommends that children be re-vaccinated for smallpox every three years, and also be given a 'booster' immunization against diphtheria every five years."

"Whooping cough injections may also be advised by your family physician. Children living in areas where typhoid fever occurs should be given typhoid inoculations."

Parents should consult their family physicians or the local health department for information regarding vaccinations and immunizations against communicable diseases."

Announcement of clinics to be held in Frankfort and Mokena areas will be forthcoming.

Funeral services for Mrs. Mae Wheeler, 41, who was burned to death March 10 when her six room home at New Lenox was razed by fire, in the afternoon, were held last Saturday afternoon in the Blood and Grant funeral home in Joliet, with Rev. Ralph L. Miller, pastor of the New Lenox Methodist church officiating. Burial was in Mt. Auburn cemetery in Berwyn.

Mrs. Wheeler, who has been blind for the past 19 months, was alone in the house when the fire started. Her son George E. Wheeler III, 17 years old, had just gone to the Hamilton grocery store for his mother and she had locked the door after he left, which was her custom. Lawrence Howard, who lives nearby noticed the cottage was on fire. He and Mrs. Harry Wheeler, the victim's sister-in-law who lives next door, rushed to the burning building and attempted to gain entrance. Finding the door locked they broke the glass in the bedroom window but unable to see anything thru the dense smoke, they called but received no answer. Flames drove them from the window.

Members of the New Lenox Fire department found Mrs. Wheeler's body huddled under the bedroom window and believe she attempted to escape but was overcome by smoke. The fire is believed to have started from an over heated coal stove. Two pet dogs also died in the fire.

In addition to her son, she is survived by her husband George E. Wheeler Jr. and a daughter, Mrs. Robert (Dolores) Wiarenga, two sisters, Mrs. Alex Jerkins and Mrs. Edward Pine, a brother Edward Smith, and one grandson, all of Chicago.

The Wheeler family were living in Chicago when Mrs. Wheeler lost her sight 19 months ago. This caused her husband to move to New Lenox where he built a house especially designed for a blind person. They have been living there for the past 18 months.

Their married daughter, 17 years old, and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. R. Wiarenga, who were living with them, also lost all their belongings including clothing and clothing for a new baby just born to them last week. Mrs. Wiarenga, who has been in a precarious condition since the baby's birth, needing several blood transfusions, is not aware of her mother's death and their loss as yet.

No date had been set for the inquest but it was thought that it would be conducted at the New Lenox fire station.

FLYING SQUIRRELS

Roberts Mann Supt. of Conservation
Forest Preserve Dist. Cook County

Few people ever see a Flying Squirrel, although they are widely distributed throughout the wooded areas of the northern hemisphere and numerous in many localities. Unlike other squirrels, they sleep all day in their dens, coming out at dusk to feed and play during the night—less in winter than in summer. They spend more time in the trees and less on the ground than any other squirrel. Most peculiar, of course, is their ability to glide thru the air.

Flying squirrels do not fly. On each side of the body is a loose elastic membrane or fold of skin, covered with fur and extending from the wrist of the foreleg to the ankle of the hind leg, with a delicate rod of cartilage, attached only to the wrist, at the edge. Another membrane fills the triangular space between the foreleg and the neck and side of the head. When the animal leaps outward from a tree, it spreads its legs so that, with the thin membranes stretched between them, it appears almost square and flat in shape and sails diagonally downward in a long swooping glide. Its long bushy tail, broad and flat, probably is used as a rudder and as a brake to make the shot graceful swoop upward when it lands on another tree.

There are several kinds of flying squirrels including one that ranges across the Arctic Circle. Those common in the eastern half of the United States are smaller than elsewhere, the tail making up almost half the total length of 9 inches or less—about the size of a small rat. The flying squirrel of the central states may vary from tawny gray to pinkish cinnamon above, with white underparts. Its thick, silky fur is as soft as velvet. Like other squirrels, it has a blunt-faced head and small rounded ears, but the unusual feature is a pair of great black eyes which enable it to see exceptionally well at night and probably make daylight distasteful. Like all tree dwellers, it has handlike feet with long flexible toes and sharp strong claws. Apparently, the only sound it utters is a faint squeak.

Flying squirrels usually live in hollow trees or abandoned woodpecker holes, but they will build summer nests of leaves, and they occasionally take over an empty bird house near a residence, or find their way into an attic where they become a nuisance because, after dark, a flying squirrel becomes a frolisome bundle of energy. In winter, 20 or 30 may band together in a single den. One forest ranger returned to his cabin to find the chimney plugged with nesting material of leaves and shredded bark, another nest in the stove, and four nests in his mattress.

They feed mostly on seeds, tree buds, nuts, fruits and insects. One pair, that came every night to capture moths and beetles at a lighted window, were finally tamed and had their young indoors, although they came and went as they pleased. These two would eat meat, just as in the wild they may eat the eggs or young of birds. Owls are their chief enemies, although foxes and weasels sometimes catch them on the ground. They have from 2 to 6 young in a litter but observers differ as to whether they may have two or only one litter per year.

Virginia Moe, in Animal Inn, her fascinating book about the many and various animals at Trillside Museum in the Forest Preserve District, says that the young, born naked and blind, open their eyes and are well furred all over when they are about 3 weeks old. They grow swiftly after that. Miss Moe says them seem to sleep harder than most animals and when roused in the daytime their drooping eyelids give them the sleepiest look ever seen on an animal's face. They also play harder than other animals but never tussle or quarrel with each other, even when feeding. As pet they are unrivalled: soft and sleek; sociable and sweet tempered; mischievous and tirelessly playful at night.

The flying squirrel is the cherub of the animal kingdom.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

Never Too Late To Learn

Cappy Miller's young son, Squint, is forever coming up with new ideas. Now they're not all world beaters, but Cappy is usually willing to give them a try.

Seems Squint found a new way to clear brush. They take two tractors, about thirty feet apart, and connect them with a heavy chain weighted down on the ground with old iron. First they both go parallel in one direction, then they go back over the same swath in the opposite direction and up comes the brush—roots and all. Worked fine and saved time.

That's why things go so well at the Miller farm. Cappy is open-minded, tolerant of new ideas and new ways of doing. He doesn't think his way is the only way.

From where I sit, a little tolerance will make things go better for all of us. You respect my views and I'll respect yours—whether it's on farming, politics, or choosing between an ice cream soda or a temperate glass of beer.

Small Dairy Plant Operators to Meet

Small dairy plant operators, fighting hard to stay in business, will discuss their own ideas and suggestions from others on how to meet stiff competition at a one-day conference April 14 at Urbana.

The meeting, first of its kind ever held in Illinois, is sponsored jointly by cost of advertising, falling milk prices, the College of Agriculture and Commerce in the University of Illinois. Sessions will be held in the Illinois Union on the campus.

The patient is financially sick, says Dr. P. H. Tracy, dairy technologist and program chairman. So small dairy plant operators will be "put on the table," examined, and remedies will be suggested to bring them back to a healthy financial condition.

Expensive laboratory equipment, held in Illinois, is sponsored jointly by cost of advertising, falling milk prices, high labor costs, sharper competition for consumers' daily purchases, and other vital problems will be discussed, Tracy said.

Small dairy plant operators will consider their own solutions to these problems for most of the day. The entire afternoon will be spent in a panel discussion by six speakers on what small plant operators can do to make their business more secure. Operators of small milk, ice cream, butter, and cheese plants will discuss their problems in the morning.

University speakers will report on marketing trends in the dairy industry and the University's program to help small businessmen. There will be a $1.00 registration fee.

HAVE CHURCHES OPEN EVERY DAY

Communism can best be fought by removing the social evils in our American way of life, Dr. Walter A. Maier of Concordia Seminary, St. Louis declared recently in a radio message.

He said, "Churches should avoid the appearance of being 'capitalistic' solidly allied with the wealthy, but unconcerned about the poor."

"Communists claim that our church buildings are economic losses because they are open only a few hours each week and because they cater to the wealthy. We should take this argument away from them by opening our churches every day, doubling, trebling and even more decidedly increasing the number of services! We should keep churches in the poorer districts instead of restlessly seeking to move out to the wealthy and careless suburbs."

"Large, wealthy, socially prominent congregations are not the backbone of Christianity today. Particularly in financially problematical periods like the present, we must avoid the mistake frequently made, twenty years ago when in the midst of artificial prosperity people built costly luxurious, unnecessarily large churches at inflation prices, only later in the depression and its deflated incomes to find that they could not pay for them. Let us use our God-given common-sense and ask ourselves, if eleven short years after World War 1, when unrepentant America refused to humble itself before the Almighty, a crash came that shook the economic foundations of this nation, and for years made millions suffer, what reason have we to suppose that this second world struggle may not be followed even sooner and longer by a heavier depression? True, Washington tells us that proper planning will avert economic disaster for the United States; but that is only the echo of the roseate assurance we heard before 1929. In November of that year Arthur Brisbane declared, 'All the really important millionaires are planning to continue prosperity.' But the crash came and many of them could hardly continue to keep their business from bankruptcy." Have we not learned yet that it takes more than economic planning to keep our nation prosperous? Do we not understand that above everything else we must have God Almighty on our side?

IN MEMORIAM

LOWE, Elizabeth—In loving memory of our wife and mother who passed away March 16, 1948.

God's ways are always best, my friend Though different from our own— His paths may lead through grief and pain, Doom us to walk alone.

The reasons for His choice are hid, From our poor, world-sick eyes; But if we trust Him as our Guide, We'll find His counsel wise.

And if to Him we reach a hand As we blindly grope our way Through mists and clouds, and darkness now We'll reach a perfect day!

BEST IN HISTORY

The annual crop summary of the state and federal departments of agriculture says the 1948 season was one of the best in Illinois history. The total harvested acreage was the largest since 1919, and record or near record yields were obtained for practically all grains. The crops produced have an estimated value of 1.3 billion dollars. This is somewhat short of the record value attained in 1947, as lower prices for farm commodities more than offset the increased volume of crops grown.

Our Gardens

I like to think, as I travel along, Of life as a garden fair, To be full of all kinds of beautiful flowers

The common, as well as the rare, To get these blooms takes the greatest care;

The choicest of seed must we sow; And the soil prepared as best we can As we plant them row on row.

But this is not all we have to do, Our task is but begun. We must watch the weeds and pluck them out

Er, they damage the work that's been done. And God's love will shine down Like the beautiful sun

As we struggle and press toward the goal, Ne'er forgetting the cares as does no one else

For these gardens of ours every one. —Elizabeth Bush.

This reliable enterprise turns out the most luxurious new custom-made furniture. They have their own work shop which is modernly equipped, and they use U. S. Koylon Foam Rubber for their upholstery, which is superior in quality. You may select your own fabrics and colors so as to blend in with your color schemes. Also select your frames, which are sturdy built and of the latest style. They guarantee workmanship, and when your new pieces are completed you are sure to be elated, as it will be "just what you wanted."

Another specialty is re-upholstering, and we suggest to all our readers and housewives, with Spring House cleaning just around the corner, to take inventory of some of these old pieces you were going to dispose of and instead of discarding them, call Carl Trent and he will gladly give you estimates on transforming them into beautiful pieces, which will look like new when finished. Do not discard your old rocker, davenport, chair or sofa as they will have years of good wear in them. Mr. Trent makes all estimates personally and does a wonderful job. They use nationally known fabrics from "The Best Fabric in the Country" manufacturers. They sell the good old fabrics which are the best.

Trent and Bitner can take care of you for your venetian blinds and make your drapes to order. Your drapery material can be selected at their downtown store, Clinton and Ottawa streets, or if you will call them, they will gladly bring you samples from which to make your selection. This shop also handles Kirsch Rods, which are known for their durability and which are sure to always please.

Home Planners are invited to bring their upholstery problems to Trent and Bitner as they have had many years of experience and are willing to assist you in blending colors and giving you other helpful suggestions in interior decorating. They have placed many pieces of beautiful furniture in beautiful homes, and it would be worth your while to pay them a visit as they have the very latest in tapestries and different materials and patterns from which you can make your selection.

The management is composed of Estella Trent and Roger Bitner, who have broad experience and you will always find them courteous and willing to help.

MILANO BAKERY
Finest of Italian Breads
427 S. Chicago St. Joliet, Ill.

Success and happiness depend upon health and health depends upon the quality of food we eat. Good bread is essential to every man, woman and child in America. Today, the responsibility of making good bread has been placed on the baker.

Recognizing this responsibility, this company backed by long and continued efforts to make an even better bread, now gives to the people a most delicious and distinctive loaf. It is a bread to meet and satisfy the taste of the most discriminating, a bread that will satisfy the hungry appetite.

The first requisite in the making of good bread is to equip the plant with the latest and most approved labor saving machinery. This firm has spared no time nor expense in installing complete and sanitary equipment for the economical production of "the staff of life."

In fact, it is just the kind of plant you would want your bread made in.

By means of automatically operated machines the bread is scarcely touched by human hands during the entire process. In this Review we compliment the Milano Bakery and recommend their products to our readers.

They made a thorough study of the business both from wide reading and long experience and have built a plant that is thoroughly modern in every way and equipped according to the latest ideas for all the work they do. They use the latest process in cleaning, leaving the garment fresh and clean. In every department they have people who have a delicate sense of color distinction.

A Fifth of America's Doctors are Trained in Northern Illinois

CHICAGO and Northern Illinois is a world center for medical education. More doctors are trained in the area than in any other comparable community. At a conservative estimate, one doctor out of every five in the nation received part or all of his education here.

This area is a magnet for medical students because five great medical schools, with superb hospital and research facilities, are located here. The schools include the College of Medicine of the University of Illinois (the largest medical school in the United States, and probably in the world), Northwestern University Medical School (third largest in the nation), the University of Chicago School of Medicine, Stritch School of Medicine of Loyola University, and Chicago Medical College.

The medical schools are supplemented, in their teaching task, by post-graduate seminars, clinical conferences, and special courses; by the area's 95 hospitals; and by outstanding medical library facilities ties that include some 500,000 volumes. Along with the medical schools themselves, the area contains many educational institutions in allied fields. There are, for example, three famous schools of dentistry (the only city with that many), 44 schools of nursing, a major college of pharmacy, 21 schools for x-ray technicians, and others for medical librarians, medical technologists, physical therapists, occupational therapists and dental hygienists.

Schools alone, however, do not make a great center of medical education. More important are the experienced physicians and surgeons of this area who are constantly learning and, at the same time, are passing on their knowledge to new generations of medical men.

Medical training is only one of the many segments of education in which Chicago and Northern Illinois is outstanding. That the city and surrounding communities form a great educational and medical center, as well as the center of an industrial empire, is important to industrialists everywhere.
